Emil Borges, Mokena Painter Dies Suddenly

Emil Julius Borges, aged 63 years a painter and decorator who resided in Mokena over 30 years, died Monday afternoon at three o'clock in the Elmer Cooper home in Mokena. He had been in poor health all winter and had lived alone for sometime. His friends arranged for medical attention for him and for a while he appeared to be improving. Last Saturday he took a turn for the worse and the end came quite suddenly Monday afternoon.

Emil Julius Borges was born November 21, 1878 in Copenhagen, Denmark, the son of Harold and Christina Borges.

December 5, 1905 he was united in marriage with Ida Hansen in Copenhagen.

They came to America in 1907, settling first in White Plains, N. Y., before coming to Chicago and then to Mokena in 1911.

A son who was born to them in 1908 died in infancy.

Jan. 10, 1919, a son Harold Milton was born. The same year Ida died.

In 1929 he was united in marriage with Clara Saultz of Chillicothe, O. Surviving are his widow, Clara and one son Milton who has been working his way thru college at Columbus Mo. He is engaged in conservation work and was on a surveying trip when the school was wired about his father's death. He was located on the survey trip and upon receiving the message he immediately left for Mokena arriving Wednesday afternoon. Milton has enlisted in the army air corp and will enter the service this fall.

Funeral services for Mr. Borges were held Thursday afternoon at the West End Funeral home in Chicago Heights with Rev. John Tempelton of the Mokena Methodist church officiating. Burial was made beside Mr. Borges' first wife in the Maplewood Cemetery in New Lenox.

The deceased was a member of the Masonic fraternity.

SUGAR RATIONING NOT NECESSARY SAYS DEM. SENATOR FROM WYOMING

Sugar rationing continues to be a Chinese puzzle to the layman. Unless allotments to housewives are substantially increased, members of Congress charged this week, a surplus now glutting warehouses throughout the country may seriously interfere with the war program.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D. Wyo., said that Western beet sugar producers are at their wits' ends trying to find storage. He disclosed that the Great Western Sugar Company, which usually stores 500,000 bags of 100 pounds each at Chicago, now can find space for only 80,000 bags.

If they cannot sell their product or obtain warehousing facilities, the Wyoming Senator said, sugar producers may be compelled to greatly curtail operations.

Sugar refiners and producers have told the Office of Price Administration that 1942 supplies are about 8,500,000 tons or about 100,000 tons more than last year, which was an abnormal year because of hoarding by consumers and dealers.

Unless an outlet is provided for accumulated sugar, the OPM was warned, it will be necessary to divert ships carrying stocks from Cuba and Porto Rico into the banana trade. "All reliable sugar statisticians are convinced," the OPM was told, that sugar is so plentiful that rationing is unnecessary.

That fact was practically admitted by John Hamm, senior deputy director of OPM, who indicated that rationing may be lifted before the end of the year.

Members of Congress said that maintenance of the regulations in the face of mounting supplies was a "face saving" operation.

MOKENA RESIDENT HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM INJURY IN AUTO COLLISION

Mrs. Chas. Rose of Mokena had a narrow escape from injury last Saturday when the car she was driving was struck by a car operated by Morris Schlensky of Joliet. The collision occurred just as Mrs. Rose was turning into state police headquarters on North Broadway to take a test for a driver's license. Both cars were damaged but no one was hurt.

RUBE IS A REAL FISHERMAN

Rube Tart the ace fisherman of New Lenox really proved that he can capture them when he brought a fine mess of fish with him on his return last Saturday from a fishing trip to Minn. Mr. Tart gave his friends a treat with fish.

Effie Homerding of Mokena Files Suit For Divorce

Mrs. Effie Homerding of Mokena, filed suit for divorce against her husband, Thomas H. Homerding of Mokena. The petition was filed in the office of the Will County Circuit Clerk last Saturday.

In her petition, Mrs. Homerding states she was married to the defendant in Joliet May 27, 1925 and has lived with him until June of this year.

She charges cruelty, and cites one incident in June 1941 when she charges that her husband without provocation and in apparent anger, assaulted her with great force and repeatedly struck her with his fists, causing her great pain and causing discolored to appear and rendering it necessary that she have medical attention and that she was confined to her bed for a period of nine days.

She further charges that on June 21st of this year, her husband repeated a like assault on her.

Mrs. Homerding in her petition requests financial aid from her husband in the support and maintenance of herself and two children and in the payment of her court costs and attorney's fees. She states the defendant is steadily employed and well able to contribute funds for her use in the purposes mentioned.

Mrs. Homerding asks that she be granted a decree of divorce and that she be awarded the care, custody and control of a son and a daughter. She is represented by Attorney R. E. Schoensted of Joliet.

Mrs. Homerding is living in Joliet at present.

FORMER NEW LENOX TEACHER NOW EDUCATIONAL DIRECTOR OF STATEVILLE

James Gurley, of New Lenox, former principal of the New Lenox public school, has been appointed Director of Education at Stateville the past week.

TINLEY PARK METHODIST CHURCH PASTOR TRANSFERRED TO WALNUT CHARGE

Rev. L. E. Weinreich who has served as pastor of the Tinley Park Methodist church for several years was transferred to the Methodist charge at Walnut near Sterling, Ill., at the Methodist conference which just closed last Sunday.

Rev. Weinreich took charge of the Tinley Park Methodist church shortly after the German Methodist church had been destroyed by lightning. At that time Rev. Chas. Hedler was the pastor. Rev. Weinreich was instrumental in forming a consolidation of the two Methodist congregations and also working for the erection of a new church building in Tinley Park.

Through his efforts he interested members of both congregations in uniting and raising funds for the erection of the present edifice which was completed at a cost of approximately $35,000.00 about three years ago.

He was very much surprised at his appointment to the new charge as also were the members of his congregation and his many friends throughout the Tinley Park territory. Rev. Mr. Weinreich says that although he is very sorry to leave Tinley Park which he says seems like home to him, yet the new charge is a promotion as shown by the records of the Methodist conference.

Succeeding Rev. Weinreich will be Rev. R. J. L. McKelvey. More particulars about him will be printed in a later issue.

Old Glory's Birthday

July 4th is our nation's birthday and what a wonderful country we are privileged to live in. In the family of nations of the world, our country is only a youngster for many of the other countries are thousands of years old.

Yet in our short lifetime we have become the greatest freedom and liberty loving nation of all times and have offered more opportunities to human kind than any other country has ever done.

Our way of life is one of the greatest heritages bequeathed to us by our noble forefathers and today we are being called on to defend this way of life against a worldful of enemies. We must keep our priceless heritage at all costs.

A very significant article appears in another section of this paper on the subject of "Spirit of First 4th Will Give New Note to Independence Day." Read it.

Old Time Mokena Resident Passes Away

Mrs. Dorothea Aschenbrenner, aged 74 years a resident of Mokena for the past fifty years, died at her home in Mokena of a heart ailment Sunday evening.

She was the widow of Michael Aschenbrenner who passed away 4 years ago.

Surviving are six sons, William, Frank, Joseph, Leo, Adolph, Andrew three daughters, Mrs. Philip Eich, Mrs. Ernest Bartsch, Mrs. Lester Grant, 23 grand children.

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning from the home at 9 o'clock to the St. Mary's Catholic church at 9:30. Burial was made in the St. Mary Cemetery.

FLOYD COOPER AND MISS GERALDINE JACKSON MARRIED SATURDAY EVENING

A lovely June wedding took place last Saturday evening at eight o'clock in the Normal Park Presbyterian church, Chicago, when Miss Geraldine Jackson daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Jackson of 7023 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago became the bride of Mr. Floyd E. Cooper, son of Mrs. H. Adelle Cooper of Orland Park, with the pastor the Rev. Wallace T. McAfee, officiating.

The chancel was made lovely by a banking of palms, ferns and baskets of peach colored gladioli, and groups of tall white lighted candles. Preceding the ceremony an organ recital was rendered by Mr. Carl Wilson, who also played the accompaniment for Mr. Edwin Lahey when he sang several love songs.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a white satin gown with a long train and a full length veil. She carried a heart shaped bouquet of white roses and sweet peas centered with a white orchid. She wore a string of pearls, a gift of the groom.

The maid of honor was Miss Betty Jane Hite, a lifelong friend of the bride, from Willard, Ohio. She wore a gown of Nile green. The two bridesmaids were Miss Jane Mayes and Miss Peggy Barnes, both of Chicago who were gowned respectively in pink and blue. The flowers of the attendants were identical, of American Beauty roses with matching colored ribbon ties. The flower girl was little Miss Mary Margaret Burner who wore the same style dress as the bridesmaids in pink, and carried a basket of roses. Each had a tiara of ribbon matching the dress in color.

The bride's mother wore a floor length powder blue gown and a shoulder corsage. The groom's mother wore a rose colored floor length dress and wore a corsage bouquet.

The groom's brother, Private G. Merrill Cooper, who is stationed at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, came home to be best man. He wore the Army uniform.

The ushers, Ted Jackson, brother of the bride and Lester Kinney of Flossmoor, friend of the groom, were in full evening dress as also was the groom and the bride's father.

A reception was held in the church parlors following the ceremony following which the new bride and groom left on a honeymoon trip to a northwest summer resort. Upon their return they will make their home for the present with the bride's parents.

The best wishes of the community go out to this young couple. The groom was born and reared in Orland Park and is well known throughout this section.

FIRST TINLEY PARK HOME COMING A BIG SUCCESS

The first Tinley Park Homecoming and the celebration of the 85th anniversary of the Saenger Hall held at the Saenger hall grove last Friday, Saturday and Sunday drew a total estimated attendance of approximately 4,000.

The various Tinley Park organizations which had booths on the grounds did a thriving business. The rides and games were very liberally patronized and everyone had a fine time. People came from many of the nearby cities and towns.

The climax to the 3 days festivities came Sunday afternoon when a colorful parade with floats, bands, Legion and VFW color guards, the New Lenox School Band, the Markham Drum and Bugle corps and other local groups marched down Oak Park Avenue to the Saenger Hall Grove. The parade was headed by Mayor Charles F. Neimann and assistant Police Chief Walter Magner.

A reviewing stand was located near the big willow tree on the depot grounds and the judges Attorney F. A. Harper, Dr. Enoch and Charles F. Nielsen judged the parade and awarded the following prizes:

Bremen VFW Post float, "Wings of Victory" with goddess of liberty and a very beautiful and original float won first prize; second prize went to the Ladies Auxiliary of the VFW who carried a huge picture of General McArthur loaned to them by The Tinley Park Times; Third prize went to Mel's Service Station for a very neat float; Fourth prize went to Clarence Bettenhausen for his truck entry.

Hundreds of people saw the parade and many pictures were taken of it. This was one of the best parades seen in Tinley Park for a long time.

Many old time friends and neighbors met and renewed old friendships and everyone enjoyed the event very much.

It is hoped that this Home Coming will be made an annual event.

TO HOLD CANNING DEMONSTRATION AT NEW LEN.

The New Lenox Red Cross work rooms will not be open Tuesday, July 7th, because of a home canning demonstration in the basement of the New Lenox Methodist church. However, there will be a Red Cross Canteen aid meeting on Wednesday morning at 9:30 a.m. to complete the sewing of canteen caps. All members are urged to be present.

TO HOLD TWO FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATIONS IN NEW LENOX TOWNSHIP

There will be two Fourth of July celebrations in New Lenox township Saturday. The first will be the 60th annual celebration and parade to be held at the Storm's Grove in Marley. Following the parade at 10 a.m. there will be cats and refreshments in the grove with games, etc. following.

Fire Threatens Old Tinley Park Land Mark

The J. C. Funk store building in Tinley Park, a 75 year old landmark, came nearly falling prey to the flames when fire of undetermined origin broke out in the cellar of the store.

Milford Bettenhausen and Kenneth Niemann who were on their way home from the Tinley Park Home Coming celebration noticed smoke coming out of the building. They notified Henry Bettenhausen. He made an investigation and turned in the fire alarm. The fire department responded quickly and soon had the blaze extinguished. What apparently prevented the fire from getting a good start was that the inside cellar door leading to the store was closed which prevented the air from fanning the blaze.

There was a very heavy smoke which filled the store and the post office adjoining. The Swanson flat above the store also was filled with smoke. The Swanson family had just left on their vacation. Windows and doors were quickly opened after the blaze was out and the smoke was soon aired out.

It is estimated that about $500 damage was done. Part of the cellar steps, flooring and beams in the store building were charred and will have to be replaced. The damage is covered by insurance.

HUNDREDS ATTEND NEW LENOX CORNER-STONE LAYING

With the temperature striving to establish a new record for the month of June, some 250 people gathered on the building site of Trinity Ev. Lutheran church, New Lenox, to participate in the program arranged for the laying of the corner stone. In his address for this memorable occasion the Rev. P. H. Scheer of Hinsdale, stressed the significant implications of the name "Trinity" chosen for this new church. It is this incomprehensible doctrine of the Trinity, the speaker pointed out that separates the true Christian from the heretic. That God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost are coequal and coeternal, constituting one invisible God, is indeed a most overwhelming mystery; but it is the plain teaching of God's holy word and it is clearly confessed in the Creeds of the Church. In concluding his address the Rev. Mr. Scheer exhorted the members of Trinity congregation to hold fast to this heavenly wisdom as the very heart of their faith and worship.

As a special hymn of praise to the Holy Trinity, Miss Edith Stonehouse sang, "Come Thou Almighty King". She was accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Amos Bruns.

The ceremony of laying the corner stone was conducted by the Rev. W. J. Geffert, assisted by Mr. Wm. Zimmerman, contractor and by Mr. Ben Stuttmann, member of the church. The contents of the box deposited in the corner stone included the Holy Bible, a Catechism, a Hymn book, the constitution and history of the congregation, church publications, community paper, also lists containing the names of the Church officers, communicants, the pastor, building committee Sunday School, architect, contractor Pres. of the United States, Governor of the State.

After the ceremonies the Ladies' Aid of the church served refreshments. The corner stone laying marked the first step in the erection of a building designed by the architect, Edw. Chas. Hallmann. Since Government regulations prohibit the construction of a complete edifice at this time the congregation will worship in the elementary structure until world conditions again become more favorable for the building of the superstructure.

The following number of dogs in the school districts mentioned have been assessed as personal property: Dist. 154, 15; Dist. 155, 10; Dist. 156, 30; Dist. 156A, 23; Dist. 157, 30; Dist. 158, 10; Dist. 159, 28; Dist. 161, 22; making a total of 168 dogs.

Band Association will conduct their 4th annual Fourth of July celebration in the New Lenox Athletic Club field on Lincoln Highway on the west edge of the village. There will be a fireworks display. These are the only two Fourth of July celebrations scheduled in any of the towns around here.

Atty. Krusemark Says Tinley Proceedings Illegal

Attorney A. H. Krusemark of Frankfort who is opposing the creation of a high school district by Tinley Park which district would take in properties in Rich and Frankfort townships, states that if the proposed election for the creation of this district is held on July 11th and if the proposition carries he will at once institute court proceedings to tie up the matter.

Attorney Krusemark's contention is that the procedure being pursued in the formation of the proposed high school district is illegal. In the first place, Attorney Krusemark points out, the aim is to create a protective district with no school building as no building can be carried on now during the war period. This he contends is contrary to the state law, which provides that when a tax levy is spread for a high school district, a high school building must be erected.

Secondly Attorney Krusemark points out that when a petition is filed with a county superintendent of schools calling for an election on the creation of a high school district and is withdrawn, another petition for a like purpose cannot be filed until two years have elapsed from the date of the filing of the first petition.

To back up this contention Attorney Krusemark says he has found an identical case cited in the latest edition of supreme court decisions in this and adjoining states. This particular case is that of the Mt. Erie Community High school District of Wayne County, Ill. The Illinois Supreme court held that in this instance the first petition was filed May, 20, 1939 and that a second petition was filed Jan. 13, 1941, less than 2 years later. For this reason the Supreme Court ruled, the district was not legally organized and the judgement of the trial court must be reversed. The case was remanded to the Circuit Court of Wayne County.

In the Tinley Park case Attorney Krusemark points out that the first petition was filed Nov. 12, 1941 and the second petition was filed March 9, 1942, only five months apart.

Attorney Krusemark holds it is a needless expenditure of the taxpayers money to go ahead with the proposed Tinley Park district only to have it wind up in legal proceedings. He has written to Noble Puffer, Cook County Supt. of Schools setting forth the above contentions and has asked him to call off the election set for July 11th.

TO HOLD PUBLIC MASS MEETING AT TINLEY ON HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT MATTER

A big public mass meeting is scheduled to be held in the Tinley Park Public school next Tuesday evening July 7th, at 8 p.m., to discuss the proposed creation of the new Tinley Park High school District and the forthcoming election on the proposition July 11th. Speakers conversant with the school laws and requirements will be present to present facts and figures and to answer questions of the taxpayers and voters.

JUNIOR RED CROSS FORMED AT MOKENA THIS WEEK

A Junior Red Cross organization has been formed in Mokena and the first meeting was held Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. Bender on Wolf Road, from 1:30 to 4:30 o'clock. The Mesdames Ted and George Woodruff and Mrs. Margaret Carter of Joliet of the Will County Red Cross chapter were present. Mrs. Ted Woodruff is in charge of the eastern Will County Red Cross work and she with the assistance of the other named Joliet women organized this group of 12 girls into the Junior Red Cross.

Mrs. Lumpkin of Mokena, who is in charge of the Red Cross knitting for Mokena, handed out material to the members and Mrs. Raymond McGuire instructed the members in the making of surgical dressings. There is a great demand for surgical dressings therefore a need for more members for this Unit. All girls who are interested and wish to help in this worthy work are asked to join and come to the next meeting which will be Wednesday afternoon July 8 at 1:30 in the home of Miss Jean Rueckert. All girls are invited.

VILLAGE BOARDS TO MEET

The following village board meetings will be held next week: Monday, July 6, Frankfort and Tinley Park, Tuesday, July 7, Mokena.

LEAVING FOR ARMY SERVICE

Among the Will County men leaving for army service are Clarence Werner and Richard Kohl of Mokena.

Spirit of First 4th Will Give New Note to Independence Day

Fourth of July Celebration to Be Worldwide in Scope This Year

By CHARLES A. SINGLER

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

"You write it," said John Adams to Thomas Jefferson, "for you wield a pen ten times more eloquent than my own."

And Thomas Jefferson wrote it.

That was 166 years ago. But today the Declaration of Independence gleams among the literary jewels of the world through the sheer beauty of its phrasing and the human dignity for which it stands.

Thomas Jefferson at that time, in the year of grace, 1776, was a young man of 33, known for his clarity of expression and ability as a writer. How well he wrote all the world now knows.

In that hall in Philadelphia, learned and courageous men pledged "their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor" that we might be a free nation. Surely enough, the men who signed the Declaration of Independence risked their fortunes, to say nothing of their lives, for those indeed were perilous times. King George of England was not disposed to treat lightly the matter of disloyalty to the crown. "We must all hang together," Benjamin Franklin had said, "or we will all hang separately." But he knew when he said it that it was no joking matter, although millions have had a good laugh since then at the wittiness of his remark.

That First Fourth.

The Fourth of July, 1776, was a hot, sunny day, and in the afternoon a thunderstorm broke. Although the Declaration was adopted on the fourth, it was not engrossed until some weeks later. The announcement of the Declaration created a restrained enthusiasm, tempered by a knowledge of the gravity of the step. In this respect it closely resembled our own Declaration of War against Japan, and then against the entire Axis, when a peace loving nation, fully in accord with these declarations of war, waited tensely for developments.

The document was proclaimed to the people in the state house yard on July 8. At the same time the liberty bell was rung to summon the populace. Within a few weeks after the great bell tolled, King George's army under General Howe was hovering uncomfortably close, and soon thereafter the long and bitter chapters of the Revolutionary war were being written in privation, blood and heroism.

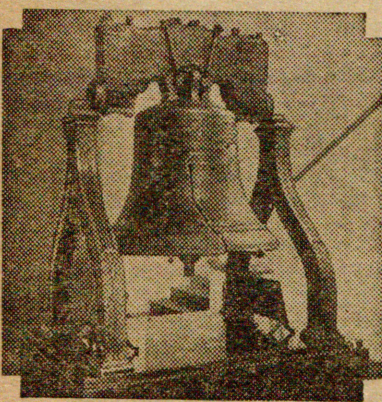

The first publication of the historical document was on July 8, in Dunlap's Pennsylvania Packet. Other printed copies appeared in Newport, Boston and Salem.

A Symbol of Freedom.

The big bronze bell with the familiar rent in its side has been the symbol of liberty and free expression to countless millions of Americans since the new republic embarked on its perilous enterprise in the year 1776. The crack came into the bell when it tolled the funeral of Justice Marshall in 1835. In the raised letters which adorn its crown it is proclaimed that the bell was cast by Pass & Stow in the year 1753 by order of the Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania for the new state house "erected shortly before in that city." However, the great bell could make other claims. It could claim—but it does not—that it was the first bell turned out in an American foundry.

This, then, is the background in which the first Independence day was cast, and all should be familiar with it. The spirit of liberty which glowed from the pages of the immortal Declaration has been the guiding star of the American people from that far day to this. The pattern of liberty which was fashioned then has been woven into all of our institutions, as well as into our

The famous old Liberty Bell which announced the Proclamation of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776.

Global War Creating Interest in Geography

Americans in and out of school are rapidly seeking knowledge of regions which the nation's armed forces may be called upon to defend. They want to know how the loss of a seemingly remote country can affect the supply of commodities and food products which the American household has taken for granted. Many have relatives going to battle stations in distant areas.

"The war has demonstrated that the study of geography, even by speech and our everyday lives. Liberty is an essential part of all of us. We draw it in with the very air we breathe.

It is inconceivable that a country nurtured in these fine traditions could ever accept the yoke of a foreign power, or that the flame of liberty should ever burn out on these shores. Those who in their arrogance thought that it might planned badly indeed.

Liberty Bell Rings Again.

And so the liberty bell has rung again. Its first reverberations were heard from the U.S.S. Augusta, in the North Atlantic, at the time the Atlantic Charter was written. The bell pealed still louder when America entered the war. But this time its reverberations were heard throughout the world, guaranteeing to all peoples that freedom which is the divine heritage of all.

This Fourth of July will differ, both in celebration and in spirit, from other Fourth of many years past. Once more America is at war, but this time we fight not alone for our own liberty but for the liberties of conquered countries and for those nations whose liberties are threatened by the aggressor nations.

The Changing Times.

The fishing trips and the basket picnics of last Fourth and earlier Fourth will largely be converted this year into trips to training camps

This Fourth of July will find American boys celebrating the Declaration of Independence on many fronts throughout the world. Picture shows a group of typical U. S. fighting men who are manning our Caribbean defenses. They are equipped with modern Garand rifles and wearing mosquito helmets. These finely conditioned men are experts in "bush" warfare.

throughout the land to visit soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen in-the-making. Millions who formerly sought pleasure in countless ways in city or country will find strange new delight in wielding the hoe or pushing the cultivator in victory gardens all over the land. Many, too, will glean with pride and satisfaction some of the agricultural rewards of early springtime efforts, to be placed on the Fourth of July table. For never before in the history of our country has there been such a trend towards "grow your own" as in the spring of 1942.

Thousands of boys who celebrated last Fourth in the traditional American way will celebrate it this year in foreign lands. In Iceland, in China, Ireland, Australia and 26 other outposts of our far-flung battle front the Declaration will be duly celebrated. On aircraft carriers, battleships, cruisers, destroyers, subs and minesweepers, on PT-boats and flying fortresses, tribute will be paid to that first grand Fourth of July. And it won't be done with firecrackers!

Widening Range of the Fourth.

While the Fourth of July has been a major American holiday from time immemorial, it has been strictly an American holiday with little more than passing press notices in foreign lands. However, there is reason to believe that those countries which are not under the Nazi heel will hail the Fourth this year as never before. It may even become an international holiday after victory is won, at least in those Axis-dominated countries who will owe civilians on the home front, merits far more attention than it has been given here," according to Johnson E. Fairchild, instructor in geography and world affairs at Cooper Union. "Brightly colored maps," he points out, "greet German children in their kindergarten classes and follow them through every stage of their education, but in this country geography has been relegated to a minor position in just about every primary and secondary school."

their liberty to the efforts of America and the other United Nations engaged in the struggle for world freedom.

A 'Quiet Fourth' Expected.

Indications now point to the quietest Fourth in many years. Regulations issued last March by the Federal Explosives Control act placed a ban on the sale of fireworks and "torpedoes" of the fireworks variety. The measure was designed to save materials needed for munitions and at the same time lessen the danger of fires.

However, this ban has been somewhat modified since then to dispose of stocks on hand. Amended regulations forbid giant crackers and rockets of the "super-duper" variety but allow manufacture and sale of firecrackers not more than five inches long, of torpedoes containing less than five grains of explosives, and all other works within specified size limitations.

During the motoring years that stretch behind us the Fourth has been marked each year with a great flux of auto travel from city and Military Strength of Russia, Japan Still a Secret...What Cabinet Of 1940 Thought of Defending Australia...

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

WASHINGTON.—Two nations now at peace with each other, but fighting desperately in the war on opposite sides, remain utter enigmas as to fighting strength, numbers of troops, capacity of production of war supplies, and every other detail essential to the military pattern. These are, of course, Russia and Japan.

Not only was Adolf Hitler fooled as to Russia's strength when he first attacked; he is still ignorant of her capacity. But that ignorance likewise applies to Great Britain, the United States, China, and all the other United Nations.

Japan fooled us and the British both very badly as to her strength prior to December 7. But she also fooled Hitler and Mussolini, not to mention the other Axis "partners." Today, according to the best information obtainable, Berlin is just as ignorant, not only as to Japanese strength but as to Japanese plans, as are London and Washington.

A prominent official who has studied British airplane production estimated a few days ago that British and American production of war planes now exceeded those of the Axis powers by at least 50 per cent. He frankly admitted he had no idea of the Russian production, but made a guess that if it were added then the United Nations plane production would exceed Axis two to one.

Two Guesses Are Made

In this estimate he was making not one, but two guesses. For no one outside Japan really knows what Japanese production is. Very few people inside Japan know, and that goes double for Russia.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction in London and Washington over this lack of information as to Russian production. Russia tells Britain and the United States what she wants, but even with the lease-lend bait we do not get any information. Nor are our military and naval observers given a chance to follow the fighting on the ground and gain their own impressions.

Though Hitler sent Japan more than 1,000 Messerschmitts he has been given no more information about Japanese production than we have about Russian.

Perhaps the answer is not so much that Japan does not trust Hitler's intentions, and Russia those of Britain and the U. S., as that they do not trust the secrecy of information once imparted to their allies.

'But Australia Was 'A Long Way Off'

Before the 1940 election President Roosevelt, who had already given 50 destroyers to the British and denounced Mussolini for his "stab in the back," was talking to members of his cabinet and congressional leaders at the White House.

What, he asked them, did they think the United States should do if Canada should be attacked by Hitler?

There was instant and unanimous answer. The United States should defend Canada with all its force.

But suppose it should be the Western coast of Canada that was attacked, and Japan which was doing the attacking?

The answer was a bit slower, but when it came it was again unanimous, and the same.

The President suggested that they should stretch this logic a bit further. Suppose, he said, that Japan should attack Australia? What then? This time there was utter silence. It continued.

Finally, after a slow grin at the position in which he had maneuvered his cabinet members and the congressional leaders, he called for some explanation for this lack of enthusiasm for defending Australia. When it still appeared that nobody else was going to say anything John Garner, then vice president, spoke up.

"You see, Mr. President," he said, "Australia is a long way off." The significance of this story, which has just leaked out via a cabinet member at a dinner party after being guarded for nearly two years, is startling.

It should be remembered that at the time this quizzing of cabinet and congressional leaders by the President occurred there could have been no reasonable doubt as to the intense hostility with which Japan regarded us.

At that time we were encouraging China, against whom Nippon was fighting her undeclared war, with not only words but money. We were strengthening our scanty garrison in the Philippines against the possibility of Japanese attack, and we were proceeding on a course which seemed to most observers certain to involve us sooner or later in a war with Japan's ally, Germany.

Heroic Farm Boy Flier's Dream Is Almost Realized

Accident During Practice Deprives Army of an Outstanding Hero.

KUNMING, CHINA.—Here is a war story of an American farm boy. His name was Tom Jones.

He died in an accident near the American volunteer group air field and the United Nations lost an important bit of that courage which pushed the American frontier from the original colonies across a continent to Tom Jones' home state of Washington.

That courage saw Tom through a vital mission in which he helped destroy a Japanese invasion column and through a spectacular raid on Japanese-held Hanoi which he thought up and supervised.

Tom had three main ambitions—to shoot down a dozen Japanese planes in aerial combat; to return to America to his wife and their two-months-old baby whom he had never seen, and to study law at Harvard.

Full of Fight.

When I first met him at an AVG hostel in southwest China, he was still thin from malaria caught on a tiger hunt in Burma, but he was full of fight.

He married a few weeks before coming out to China a year ago. He said that when he got his dozen Japs he would return to his wife and baby, "and nothing will take me from America again."

He grew restless in the hospital, hearing how the AVG was winning fame while he lay helpless in bed. Weeks before he had recovered fully he wanted to fly.

In April Tom was allowed to do combat flying. In his first dog fight he shot down two Japanese.

"I was scared as hell, but I enjoyed that fight," he said. In his next dog fight he got two more Japs.

In May he said he wanted to raid Hanoi. He knew this would be one of the most dangerous missions ever undertaken by the Flying Tigers, and that the odds were that he would never return from this flight 400 miles into enemy territory.

His friends tried to talk him out of it and his squadron leader told him outright the plan was crazy. But when Tom asked for volunteers for the mission, more than six of his friends offered to go.

Wipes Out Jap Column.

On May 8 Tom and his friends were ready. But shortly before they were ready to take off, General Chennault asked Tom to take a flight to the Salween river gorge and strafe a Japanese column which was attempting to cross the river and attack Kunming. Tom agreed.

In the most successful AVG strafing and bombing of ground troops, Tom and his friends swooped down on the Japanese column and practically wiped it out.

On May 12 Tom and his friends set out for Hanoi, despite weather that might have stopped anybody except the Flying Tigers. In their small P-40's, Tom and his men navigated 400 miles over enemy mountain territory, flying through thunderstorms.

At Hanoi, their bombs and bullets destroyed at least 15 grounded Japanese planes.

Tom said he was going home soon. He said he wanted to study law at Harvard and become a politician in the state of Washington.

"Just one more strafing, and then for home," he said.

But his plane crashed while he was practicing near the air field. He never got his 12 Japs, but he proved himself one of the best of those American boys whose courage has made possible the incredible victories of the AVG.

Wounded Bird Rescues

Hunter on Goose Chase

REYKJAVIK, ICELAND.—Second Lieut. Alexis M. Gagarine of Rockville, Md., is an inquisitive Russian-Frenchman who's a sadder but wiser man today.

Lieutenant Gagarine went exploring, spotted a wild goose and shot it. Then his troubles began. The wounded goose plunged into a swirling river and the officer plunged in after it. Man and bird were swept into a whirlpool, and, though the goose bit him and escaped, Lieutenant Gagarine claims it saved his life by pulling him from the raging current.

The officer tossed away his equipment and swam to a nearby island. The tide rose and Lieutenant Gagarine was stranded. He was rescued the following morning.

Squirrels Blamed for

Setting Church on Fire

REMSON, N. J.—An industrious family of squirrels was blamed by Fire Commissioner Robert Gilsey for a fire which destroyed the interior of the Goodwill Methodist church.

The squirrels were building a home between the walls in the rear of the church, Gilsey said, and had amassed a quantity of hay which caught fire, probably from spontaneous combustion.

Bureau Sold for $1; Drawer Holds $876

LANCASTER, PA.—James Figari, second-hand furniture dealer, picked up an old bureau at an auction for $1.

Now attorneys for the estate of the woman who originally owned it are trying to recover it.

For a youth poking around it found $876 in gold pieces and bank notes in a secret drawer.

Man Killers Are Puzzle to Police

Girls Don't Miss When They Shoot for Love.

NEW ORLEANS.—This is a problem that stumps a lot of policemen: Take a woman (not one of those college Annie Oakleys, of course) out to the target range, put a pistol in her hand, and she can't even nick the white of the target.

But when "she shoots him because she loves him" she never misses.

Sergt. Preston Friloux, the New Orleans police department's firearms instructor for the last 12 years, should have some idea about it, but declares:

"I just can't make it out. It seems they close their eyes, point the muzzle of a gun at their target, pull the trigger, and bingo!—the object of their affections hits the floor."

"And the bullet nearly always hits a vital spot. But I've taken many of 'em to the police pistol range, put a revolver in their hands and watched 'em go to pieces. They were unable to hit the white of the target from 10 feet away. They seemed too timid and frightened."

"I haven't heard of any that missed the mark when they were shooting at the real thing."

Clerk Patrick O'Brien, a 24 year veteran who has "handled more women shooting than I can remember," said he'd found that "in most cases only one bullet does the job," but added, "Don't ask me to explain—it can't be done."

He picked up, as an example, the record of a shooting in which a man was killed by one shot fired by a woman who had never even discharged a cap pistol before.

George Reyer, superintendent of police who has broken many a bank robbery, can't crack this case.

"I've often wondered about it," he admitted, "but it's beyond me. There must be a reason. Our record room is filled with reports of women picking up a revolver for the first time in their lives and putting a bullet into a man. They don't ever miss."

John J. Grosch, chief of detectives, passed it off with:

"They're just natural born marksmen when they want to 'shoot him because they love him.'"

'Baked Cushion' Saves

Walter's Head in Wreck

ROCK SPRINGS, WYO.—A one point landing on a chocolate cake probably saved Walter Lietz from more serious injury than a frosted pate in an automobile accident near here.

The Lietz car rolled over twice when a tire blew out.

"Are you hurt?" inquired Mrs. Lietz as she and her husband gingerly tested themselves for injuries after crawling clear.

"My head feels funny," said Lietz, reaching to remove his hat. "It's gummy!"

His hat was gone, but there was a covering on his head.

"Looks like some of the upholstery," said Mrs. Lietz, inspecting it.

"I think it's that insulation material I bought recently," Lietz speculated.

Then Mrs. Lietz gasped, peered into the back of the car and groaned.

Lietz's halo was the chocolate frosting of the homemade cake that had been on the back seat when the upset occurred.

Bristling With Guns—

This Fellow Really Was!

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—E. B. Prosser of Spring Valley, Minn., is almost a one-man armory.

He wrote Gov. Culbert Olson that he intended to take a job as a guard in San Diego and that he would like a permit to bring his 13 guns into the state.

If he found he would not need them all, Prosser said he was willing to donate the extra ones to the state, understanding that there was a shortage of weapons in California.

Prosser said his personal arms included three high-powered rifles, one .22-caliber rifle, two shotguns and seven automatic pistols and revolvers.

Detective Traps Queen

As Bees Block Traffic

TACOMA, WASH.—Detective Captain Bill Farrar is a specialist—akin to a bomb-disposal squad.

A swarm of bees blocked traffic at a downtown intersection. The captain was called. He set up a hive, inscribed "Return to Captain Farrar after nightfall," deftly pushed the queen inside the hive and went back to headquarters.

"They'll be in by dark," he predicted. They were, and off they went to his farm to join 10 other swarms collected the same way.

GHOST PLANE

By ARTHUR STRINGER

W. N. U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: To keep Norland Airways in business Alan Slade agrees to fly a so-called scientist named Frayne and his assistant, Karnell, to the Anawotto river in search of the trumpeter swan. With the proceeds his partner, Cruger, has bought a new plane, a Lockheed, which is stolen. When Slade returns from the Anawotto he starts out, with only two clues, to recover the plane. The first clue is the "devil bird" which the blind eskimo, Umanak, hears. Dr. Morlock, the "flying Padre," has operated on Umanak's eyes in the hope of restoring his sight. If the operation is successful Umanak will be able to help Slade. The second clue is Slade's hunch that the lost plane and the swan-hunter are somehow connected. But when he flies back to where he left Frayne he finds him apparently just hunting swans. There is no sign of the plane. But on the way home he learns that his gas cache at the cabin of Zeke and Minty, two old prospectors, has been robbed. He tells Cruger of a third clue, the disappearance of a flyer named Slim Tumstead, who knows about both the Lockheed and Frayne's expedition. Zeke and Minty discover prospectors near their camp and set out to investigate. Now Slade is talking to Lynn Morlock, the Padre's daughter.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XII

"What's wrong?" Lynn asked, startled by that newer note where fearlessness had always reigned. "Cruger and I may go bust. We haven't been able to spot our stolen Lockheed."

Lynn's brow furrowed with thought.

"But who could get away with a thing like that?" she asked. "Even in country like this?"

Instead of answering that question, Slade asked one of his own.

"Have you ever stopped to ask what became of your friend Slim Tumstead, the flyer you fixed up after that bar-room fight?"

Lynn's frown deepened. "I'd scarcely call him a friend," she objected. "He needed help, and I gave it to him."

"But they'd taken Tumstead's ticket away, remember. He's lawless and reckless. And he was at the end of his rope."

"And is probably drowning his sorrows in some McMurray gin mill," suggested the girl.

"On the contrary," said Slade, "he dropped out of sight there, without leaving a trace."

"But what would he do with a plane?"

"That's what I want to figure out," affirmed Slade. "It couldn't be just cheap-john smuggling. And it couldn't be high-grading. Not, at least, unless that man of science who calls himself Frayne is fooling us. Our birdman, of course, might be putting on an act."

"But mining and trapping is all anyone could do in country like that. He wouldn't be smuggling out marten and fox."

"It's not furs, naturally," conceded Slade. "But why is a plane flying between Echo Harbor and the Anawotto? And where did that plane come from? And who's flying it?"

"You're as bad as Umanak," Lynn observed as they stepped into the rough-boarded surgery. "That's what he keeps asking."

But Umanak surprised them by an abrupt movement of his bandaged head.

"Kabluna come back," he quietly announced.

That, Lynn knew, meant the Flying Padre. And her quick cross to the door confirmed Umanak's announcement.

"It's Father," said the girl, with her eyes on the blur of blue that grew bigger as she watched.

He could hear her cry of "Dad!" as she ran light-footed down the talus slope.

The Flying Padre's greeting to Slade was cordial but preoccupied. "You're just in time, Alan," Lynn's father asserted, "to see whether I'm still a surgeon or not. We're going to unsheathe our old friend Umanak."

Slade tried to be casual as they darkened the little surgery and examined the patient. But he was, he felt, the most excited of the three.

The Flying Padre, after a study of his patient's face, reached to the shelf for a candle, which he lighted. "You see now?" he questioned as he held the small flame well above his head.

"Me see," said Umanak.

"High or low?"

"High up," answered Umanak.

The Flying Padre blew out the candle.

"And now?" he asked.

Slade could feel Lynn's fingers tighten on his arm.

"Me no see," was the old Eskimo's answer. "Light gone."

Slade could hear Morlock's sigh of relief as he stepped back and stood straighter.

"Me go find devil-bird now!" cried Umanak.

"That happens to be my job," said Slade.

"What's this talk about a devil-bird?" asked the Flying Padre, looking up from his instrument bag.

Slade explained about the plane that had been seen between Echo Harbor and the Anawotto. But the man of medicine was not impressed.

"I see planes," he observed, "in some mighty unexpected places."

The Flying Padre's gaze rested on the younger man's face.

"That's mean country to meander about in," he said.

"That's all I'm getting out of it," he contended. "And I'm about fed up."

"I've been over it," answered the man with the Viking eyes. "That's where I took those two swan-hunters."

"Wait a minute," cried the Flying Padre, arrested by a sudden thought. "What was the nationality of those swan-hunters?"

"It's hard to say," Slade explained. "But a good deal of their equipment was German. They were certainly foreigners."

"German?" meditated the older man. "That doesn't seem to fit in."

"Fit in with what?" asked the flyer.

"With what's been happening along the coast here. Short-wave sets have been picking up messages from time to time in Russian. A good part of it, they tell me, is in code that can't be made out."

"It might be a whaler," ventured Lynn, "between here and Echo Harbor."

"Then me go Echo Harbor," was the unexpected cry from Umanak, "and find out."

But Lynn disregarded that cry.

"Don't you remember, Dad, how we kept picking up stuff like that when the Russians made their transpolar flight three years ago?"

"Yes, I remember," said the Flying Padre. "But where are these people sending from? And what would a Russian be doing in this back yard of Nowhere today?"

"That," said Slade as he glanced down the talus slope toward the Snow-Ball Baby that floated in the shallows, "is what I'm going to find out."

A gold-green light lay over the evening world as Slade left Iviuk Inlet behind him. He was too close to the land of the midnight sun to hope for much darkness, even after two hours of heading southward.

But, since his one wish was to remain unseen, he flew low over the scattered waterways and ridges, his floats all but brushing the meager spruce tops as he advanced on the thinning timber line. He flew with his lights out, feeling his way along by the stars.

The thought of flying dark over a steadily darkening terrain gave him the feeling of being singularly alone in a world that had fallen asleep.

He wondered if, some day, camps and town-sites would mark that world of emptiness. And as though in answer to that unuttered question he observed the darkness punctuated by an unmistakable sign of life. Up from the empty world ahead of him he saw a signal rocket flare and die away again. Then out of the gloom his eye caught the repeated twinkling of a flashlight.

He watched those flashes closely, doing his best to read them. But they meant nothing to him beyond the fact that they were spelling out a message, and a message obviously not intended for him.

Slade made a quick decision. He banked and turned, still keeping uncomfortably close to the ridge crests, skimming over the broken woodland like a swallow skimming over ruffled water. He quartered off at right angles to his earlier course, idling on until he felt certain he was beyond the vision of the flashlight signaler. Then he doubled back until he found open water enough to make sure of a landing.

All was quiet along the starlit lake surface that took up his headway. He let his plane drift in closer to the shadowy shoreline. Then, making sure that all was still silence, he poled his ship patiently along the shallows. He worked his way westward, toward the source of the rocket flare, until he came to a landing spot that suited his purpose. There he moored his plane against the shelter of a sparsely timbered bluff and took up his rifle.

For several minutes, after mounting the near-by ridge, he stood silent and watchful. When no sign of life came to him he began picking his way carefully over the broken terrain toward the quarter from which the flashlight signals had first shown themselves. His caution became greater as he noticed where timber had been cut along the ridges that grew bolder as he advanced. He even observed where a hillside had been cleared and stripped. The scattered dikes and hollows clearly showed how a prospector had been busy there with pick and shovel.

Slade crouched low in one of these hollows and struck a match, wondering if the light would show up a tell-tale vein of gold-bearing quartz. But all he saw was dark and pitch-like rock.

He went on up the slope, puzzled by the repeated signs of an enterprise that seemed without meaning or purpose. Then he stopped short, arrested by a movement above him.

In the vague light he could see a man, a huge-bodied man stripped to the waist, moving along the ridge crest. Balanced on his shoulders he carried what had every appearance of an ore bag, an ore bag so heavy that the big body bent forward under its weight. He seemed to be following a path that led into the scrub timber ending abruptly in the shimmer of lake water.

Slade, watching from the shadows, saw that figure return empty-handed along the hilltop trail. Then he saw it once more forge lake-ward, once more burdened with the weight of its ore bag. He could not be sure, but something about that great body with its gorilla-like arms made him think of Karnell. And if it was Karnell, Slade felt, the man who called himself Frayne would be somewhere in the neighborhood.

That thought prompted the watcher to push farther up the slope, seeking the cover of the underbrush as he went. He crept on until he crossed a well-trodden trail and again entered the underbrush that furred the declining hill slope. From there he could see a strange-looking structure of spruce boles partly obstructing the view of the lake water between the shouldering hills. In the rocky cup behind the odd-looking spruce canopy he saw a small tent, and beside this tent he caught sight of a small campfire carefully ceilinged by a tarpaulin on four stakes.

But what held his attention was a figure squatting beside that fire, a figure in a leather flying jacket. He could not make out the man's face. But he could see him replace a coffee-pot on the coals and drink from a granite cup, which he tossed aside when he had emptied it. Then the man by the fire looked up as a second man spoke to him, apparently from inside the tent.

"Not on your life," cried the man beside the fire. "I'll be damned if you'll get me to do any navy work."

What was said in response to that Slade could not hear.

"I sweat enough unloading the damned stuff," contended the man in the flyer's jacket.

A figure emerged from between the tent-flaps and stood looking down at the fireside lounge.

"You would sweat less, my friend," the newcomer said with steely-voiced precision, "if you restricted your use of alcohol."

The other's laugh was not pleasant.

"That's all I'm getting out of it," he contended. "And I'm about fed up with living like a timber wolf."

"But that plane must be loaded, a ton a trip," retorted his companion. "And Karnell can do only so much."

Slade knew then that his guess had not been wide of the mark. The huge-bodied man who carried the ore bags was indeed Karnell. And the indignant figure standing above the man who still squatted beside the campfire was Frayne. When, a moment later, the fireside squatter rose to his feet and stood with his face to the light, Slade saw that it was Tumstead.

"Your bulldog can do the loading," Tumstead was saying. "I'm a flyer."

"Who's drinking too much to keep a clear head," amended Frayne.

"What I drink," retorted the other, "is my own affair. I've carried your cargoes and kept this crate afloat, haven't I? And now that an outsider or two is edging in on your little enterprise I'd rather like to know where I get off in the blow-up comes."

"There will be no blow-up, as you term it," was the cold-noted response. "And there will be no edging in on this enterprise."

"But there's a snooper or two around this camp, and you know it. And when they stumble over what you're after I'm left out on a limb."

GOD THE CREATOR

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 1:1-5, 24-31; 2:1. GOLDEN TEXT—In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.—Genesis 1:1.

What is to become of this world? That is the question on the mind and lips of everyone as they see all mankind engaged in a struggle which bids fair to wipe out everything called civilization.

In such a time it is good to remind ourselves that man did not make this world, nor is it the product of natural forces. God made it.

God, who is eternal, infinite, knowing all from the beginning, is not moved by the impulses of the moment nor staggered by the catastrophes of a day. He made the world. He made man. He had a plan for them, and still has a plan which in due season He will work out for His own glory.

I. God Made the Heavens and Earth (vv. 1-5, 24-25).

The plain biblical account of creation—"In the beginning God"—stands as a dignified, satisfactory, intelligent explanation of the origin of things, and in bold contrast to the confusing and almost unbelievable theories of men.

The best of scientists admit that they know nothing of the origin of things, and some even confess that they never will know. The answer to the query with which every human philosophy opens is the affirmation with which the divine account in Genesis opens—"In the beginning God."

Space forbids full discussion of the account of creation, but a study of it will reveal its beautiful order, symmetry, and completeness. Science, when it gets beyond theories to facts, finds them confirmed by Scripture. Please do not reverse that and speak of science confirming Scripture. If my watch does not agree with the time of the stars, it is the watch that must be reset.

II. God Made Man in His Own Image (vv. 26-30).

Although man, under the control of Satan, does not give much ground for the observation, it is nevertheless true that he was made in the likeness and image of God. Because that is true, we never give up hope for him. That image, no matter how deeply defaced by sin, still may be touched by redeeming grace and restored to fellowship with God.

The likeness and image of God in man undoubtedly refers to a moral and spiritual likeness. Man is a living soul with intelligence, feeling, and will power. He is a moral being, knowing the difference between right and wrong. He is a self-conscious, personal being.

To man God gave dominion over the earth and all its potential powers. Sometimes one has been hopeful that man was making good progress in the development of the earth's resources for his own good and the glory of God. But one is almost tempted to conclude now that he has used this great God-given opportunity only for destruction and death. Only a revival of real Christianity can bring him back to his senses. Let us pray and work for it.

Observe that the family was established as the center of man's life on earth, as God gave him a "help meet unto him." Woman was taken "not out of man's head that she should rule over him; nor out of his feet to be trampled upon; but out of his side to be equal with him, under his arm to be protected by him, and near his heart to be loved by him" (Matthew Henry).

The decay of family life and the substitution of social or civic units as the basis of life have led to disastrous results. Not only do we need a revival of religion, we also need a revival of the home life of the nation.

III. God's Creation Was Complete and Good (1:31; 2:1).

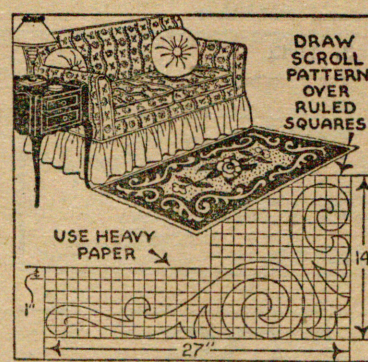

When men do recognize the hand of God in creation they all too often seem to feel that what He made was very limited and defective. It would almost seem that God ought to be grateful that man has been so clever about perfecting His work, developing it and making it useful. As a matter of fact, God who had all knowledge and whose standards are higher than man's standards could possibly be, looked over His creation and "behold, it was very good" (v. 31). It was a "finished" job (2:1).

Man has destroyed much of its beauty. Sin came in and marred the whole creation. What man's inventive cleverness has developed of the possibilities of this world is only a minute fraction of what is yet available. Instead of boasting, man might well be ashamed of the pathetic slowness with which he has "thought God's thoughts after Him."

Instead of fighting and destroying, he ought to give his energies to building, developing, and above all, to loving God with all his heart and his neighbor as himself (Matt. 22:37-40). This is God's first and great commandment to you and to me.

WOMEN today are not the first to discover a war-time shortage of floor coverings. The glowing Oriental rugs of the Colonial mansion ceased to be imported during the Revolution; and the simple hooked rug made from old clothing began to be developed in more elaborate designs.

Then, as now, scroll borders around a flower motif were popular. The posies were designed according to individual taste but scroll patterns went the rounds of neighbors who traced the patterns on the burlap or canvas rug foundation. Today wax crayon is generally used for tracing. You will find it easy to make a cut-out pat-

When bed sheets become worn, pillowcases may be made from the best portions. Seams may be sewed at the sides, if necessary.

Leather never should be cleaned with gasoline, naphtha or any hydrocarbon solution. They dissolve and remove all the essential fats in the leather, leaving it dry and harsh.

Before working in the garden, put soap under and around your finger nails. You will find them much easier to clean.

If strawberry jam should sugar, mix it with two parts of cooked rhubarb to the one of jam, cook together for a few minutes and you will have an excellent pie filler, cobbler filler or sauce.

To remove finger marks around a doorway, use a cloth dipped in kerosene and then wipe with a cloth wrung out of hot water.

If the sewing machine needle will not penetrate heavy canvas, try rubbing the canvas where it is to be sewn with a piece of soap.

When ironing puffed sleeves, fold the sleeve in halves, pulling apart as it sticks. In this way you can get down into the gathers at the top. Iron it dry and you will have a pretty puffed sleeve when it is done.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my beloved wife who passed away June 30, 1933:

Imprinted deep upon my mind
And stamped upon my heart,
A vision of your face I find
That never will depart.
In all my thoughts you find a place,
Or say it seems I can't erase
The memory of you.
The wound is as deep
And hurts as much today
As it did nine years ago,
When you passed away.

GEORGE SCHREIBER

IN MEMORIAM

In fond and loving memory of my beloved son Henry who passed away July 1, 1936:
The depths of sorrow I cannot tell,
Of the loss of the one I loved so well,
And while he sleeps a peaceful sleep
His memory I shall always keep.

GEORGE SCHREIBER

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all the neighbors and friends and especially the Tinley Park Volunteer Fire Department for assisting and helping us fight the fire in the John Funk store. We deeply appreciate the excellent service rendered by the Fire Department which enabled them to save the building from being burned.

HENRY J. BETTENHAUSEN

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Frances Keuch who passed away a year ago, June 30, 1941. We miss thee from our home dear mother.

We miss thee from thy place,
A shadow o'er our life is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face.
We miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy kind and earnest care,
Our home is dark without thee,
We miss thee everywhere.

Dear Friends:
Writing you a few lines to let you know that I'm feeling fine and in the best of health.

Received your package today containing cigarettes, razor blades and a mirror and I thank you very much for them.

In the future you may omit the cigarettes because I can buy them cheap in the PX only about 60 cents a carton, but will appreciate all the razor blades you send me also old magazines and the Tinley Park Times which I received only once at Burlington.

You ask me some time ago if I need a sweater, at that time I didn't need any but wouldn't mind having one now about size 39.

Not much more I can say so in closing I wish all my friends back home the best of luck.

Your Friend,
Al.

Dear Lu:
They let us out of our straight jackets yesterday, so I can answer the letter you sent me nearly a month ago.

We are now back in the garden spot of California, Fort Cronkhite again and I've got my long under wear on, are you sure its summer back there?

Don't worry tho, tough as iron we are, we're all stiff as ram rods, frozen stiff, but we just smile through the frost on our faces and carry on, it just wouldn't be cricket to make a liar out of the Chamber of Commerce all kidding aside, I'm having a fine time, sitting in my radio station listening to nothing, great sport, this listening to nothing, one of these days I think I'll hear something.

Well I see by those APO addresses that some of the boys hopped on an eat wagon (slang for transport).

Well, Lu, after all this writing, I could have covered the whole thing by razing. I'm fine and I hope you're fine and everybody else back there is fine, and there's something about a soldier that is fine, fine, fine which reminds me, my room mate got fined six bucks for not having this year's license, a drivers license, insurance, a blown out muffler, no lights and couldn't prove ownership to the car. A late 28 model A Ford. The judge has no sense of humor, tch, tch.

So long kids, don't forget the change of address.

Sgt. Kenneth V. Devlin
Reg. 56th CA, Fort Cronkhite, Calif.
P.S. You don't think I'm really in a straight jacket do you?

June 14, 1942

Dear Friends:

I'm very sorry I haven't written before, but I been kinda moving around the southern part of the country for quite a while.

I'm back at Camp Polk now and am pretty sure I will stay for a while now. I sure want to thank everyone up there for all the swell things that were sent me and I have gotten all the gifts OK. I also want to thank you for the Tinley Park Times every week. It sure seems good to be able to read the Tinley Times again and find out what is going on around home.

I'm still doing radio work here and am classed as a radio operator. I'm working at the division radio school now and I'm sort of a maintenance man and radio operator. I also live right in school and do not stand in relieve or any formation, just take it easy every day.

I get to see Emory once in a while I have been transferred to the Seventh Armored Division so there's a slight change in my address. My address now is the 147 Armored Signal Co., 7th Armored Division, Camp Polk, La.

I'm not much of a hand on writing letters so I think I'll close for now and I hope to see you all very soon when I get home on a furlough and I want to thank everyone again for everything and hope to see you soon.

So long for now,
From "Herman" Roecker

U. S. O. UNITED STATES SERVICE ORGANIZATION

Boxes will be placed in all the business houses in Tinley Park over this coming week end to receive your contributions. Won't you help?

The letters USO stand for United Service Organizations. They are The Young Men's Christian Association, The National Catholic Community Service, The Salvation Army, The Young Women's Christian Association, The Jewish Welfare Board and The National Travelers Aid Association. Instead of functioning individually, as was the case in the last war they've united their years of successful experience and trained personnel under the banner of USO. Thus there is no duplication of effort, no overlapping of territory served. USO is strictly a citizen's organization, supported by contributions from folks back home for the sole benefit of the boys away from home.

Bill has leave from camp. He heads for town. But what's there to do? Funds are low that's a chinch. Kinda lonesome just walking around. Those kids playing marbles remind him it's spring back home. Gee! Yes that's the state of mind Bill is likely to get into if there's nothing to do and no place to go when he has time off and that's where USO steps in. It provides the place for Bill to go, where he can do things, play games, hear music, see motion pictures, meet people, laugh, talk HAVE FUN, or just sit and relax as he would do at home. Good for him. You bet, just ask him! And USO service follows him wherever he goes on maneuvers overseas. USO mobile units reach out to the loneliest sentry walks. USO camp shows tour the camps and naval bases. His ticket of admission, his uniform.

Even with the economies and efficiencies of the six service organizations united together, it takes money, lots of it to do the big job. $32,000,000 is needed nationally—$1,749,432 for the Chicago district's share. Yet the average cost of providing U. S. O. facilities is only 66 cents per month per man. A small amount indeed for a month of smiles. There's only one place the money can come from, and that's from us back home.

The government, the army and the navy takes mighty good care of the boys while they're on duty. On leave, they don't want military supervision and War Department authorities agree they shouldn't have it. So off duty, it's up to us to keep 'em smiling.

The USO needs your help now. This essential part of our war effort cannot be allowed to falter. Here's the answer to the question that's in every loyal American's mind—What CAN I do to help? Your gift to the USO will go a long way to toward Victory. Don't let the boys down. When you are asked to make your contribution, give with a smile—to keep 'em smiling.

TINLEY GARDEN CLUB NEWS

The Tinley Park Garden Club met in the home of Mrs. Wm. Funk on Thursday June 18, twenty members being present. The program chairman of the month, Mrs. Baldwin, had arranged a unique contest for the members whereby each one was to bring a hat made of flowers or a slipper or shoe filled with flowers.

There were many chic models in hats, which really made a difficult proposition for Mrs. Beggs who had consented to act as judge. She picked Mrs. Albert Koehler's hat, a pert little affair whose foundation was a cabbage leaf, covered with blue corn flowers and embellished with a blue veil. Mrs. Swisher won second prize for her vegetable hat.

Mrs. John Klepper and Mrs. Werth received honorable mention Mrs. Klepper's victory hat was made of red, white and blue flowers, Mrs. Werth's, red and white flowers and a blue ribbon. Mrs. Kehres received 1st prize for her slipper filled with flowers and Mrs. Keleher 2nd prize for hers.

Mrs. Nielsen asked for volunteers to work at the Service Center in Chicago in September.

The Garden Club would like to have flowers for the Chicago Fruit and Flower Guild from anyone in the community. Flowers for July to be brought to the home of Mrs. Baldwin Tuesday evenings.

These little bouquets which are made up Tuesday evenings and sent to Chicago Wednesday mornings mean so much to little shut ins, also older folks in hospitals etc.

The Garden club would be very grateful for any flowers. In July the club will have their annual outing in the Tinley Creek woods with a pot luck luncheon at 12:30 July 16th.

Martha Goebel, Press chairman.

MOKENA

The Mokena Red Cross is having their work room in the Village hall open each Monday afternoon from 1:30 to 3:30 o'clock. 50 thousand surgical dressings is the quota for Will County for Civilian Defense, and the quota that will soon be released for the army use will be much larger, so a need exists for more women to help Monday afternoons. Any woman who can spare a few hours on these days are urged to join this group of workers.

The Members of the First Aid Class of the Red Cross, which recently completed their course of instructions, met last Friday night in the home of Mrs. R. McGuire. It was decided that this group will apply for permission to organize a volunteer First-aid Detachment.

Mrs. Albert Cappel and Mrs. Mrs. Wesley Cappel and daughter who have been visiting their parents and other relatives in Truman, Minn., since the middle of June, are expected home Sunday.

A group of Mokena young folk enjoyed the moon light cruise on Lake Michigan Sunday evening.

Mrs. Edna Shusted of Chicago, has moved to Mokena to make her home with her father, Herman Schweser, while her husband Ed. A. Shusted is in the military service of the U. S.

Everett Benson who recently purchased the John Marti home on Front street, moved his family into the newly acquired home Sunday.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Christian Science" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 28.

The Golden Text was, "Laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrites, and envies, and all evil speakings, as newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby (1 Peter 2: 1, 2).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 5: 14, 16).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Beyond the frail premises of human beliefs, above the loosening grasp of creeds, the demonstration of Christian Mind-healing stands a revealed and practical Science. It is imperious throughout all ages as Christ's revelation of Truth, of Life, and of Love, which remains inviolate for every man to understand and to practise" (p. 98).

"RIVERVIEW" PLANS GIGANTIC 4TH OF JULY CELEBRATION; NEW RIDES AND THRILLS!

With many Chicago families planning to spend the Fourth of July weekend at home this year instead of taking motor trips out of town, due primarily to tire conservation, Riverview, Chicago's famous amusement park, is planning a gala holiday for its visitors.

A mammoth fireworks display, is scheduled for the evening of the Fourth. Vari colored fire pictures and all sorts of aerial bombs, sky rockets will thrill all those who attend. Many families plan to take picnic lunches to eat on the many tables and benches in the grove and throughout several other sections of the park.

This being the first wartime Fourth of July in twenty four years, Park guests are expected to take great interest in rides and games dealing with aircraft. Among them are the Pair O Chutes, 220 foot twin towers with six parachutes, the Strat O Strat, rocket ships which soar on steel cables far above the Park and the Flying Scooters, airplanes for two which can be maneuvered by individual controls.

The Archery range which has Jap faces for its targets is expected to run high in popularity.

Service men on furlough are expected by the thousands. When in uniform, they are admitted free at Park gates at any time.

LAKE CRUISE AFFORDS PATRIOTIC WAY TO HELP IN THE WAR EFFORT; 5 AND 7 DAY TRIPS ANNOUNCED

Only two changes will be made in the itinerary of the three ships of the Georgian Bay Line for the Great Lakes cruise season of 1942, according to E. J. Goebel, passenger traffic manager.

The S. S. South American will stop at Houghton Hancock in the northern peninsula of Michigan instead of Mackinac Island, on its seven day round trip cruises between Buffalo and Duluth. This will enable passengers to go through the northern Michigan peninsula in a new and interesting waterway, the Keweenaw waterway and allow them to travel up the beautiful St. Mary's River in daylight. This ship will have all the other ports of call of last year, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Isle Royale and Duluth.

The S. S. North American will make the seven day round trips between Chicago and Buffalo, with stops at Cleveland, Detroit, Mackinac Island and Midland, Ontario, Canada, in Georgian Bay.

The S. S. Alabama will make a five day, and weekend sail from Chicago. The five day cruise will make stops at Mackinac Island, Houghton Hancock and a second stop at Mackinac Island. Isle Royale will not be a port of call on this cruise this summer.

The weekend trip will be to Sturgeon Bay and Mackinac Island. Because of the necessity to conserve tires and motor cars, and the available money from war manufacturing industries in the large cities of the Great Lakes, cruise trips should prove most popular this year, Mr. Goebel believes. The 1942 regular summer season opened Saturday, June 27th.

PRODUCING MILK OF SUPERIOR FLAVOR

"Bowman dairy farmers located in Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana are playing a large part in the nutritional program advocated by our government in producing milk of superior flavor," says M. J. Metzger, Vice President of the Bowman Dairy Co. "They are helping to keep fit our boys in the armed services and the men and women employed in the production of war materials," continued Mr. Metzger.

During the month of May the Bowman Dairy Company paid the farm producers of Will County the sum of $15,819.54 for fluid milk.

Production of dairy products is considered by the government as one of the most essential in our armament program. The farmers of Will County are to be commended upon the splendid job they continue to do in spite of the shortage of farm labor. It is the same spirit to win being shown by our boys in the war zones that is being carried on by our farm people who truly are "the men behind the men who carry the guns."

War Production
and Electric Power
in Northern Illinois

On the ways, in the war plants, factories and shops of Northern Illinois, war production is constantly reaching greater goals. Month after month, materials and equipment for war on the sea, on the land and in the air are pouring out of this area.

In this vast production of war implements, the constant flow of electricity turns the wheels of industry, changes the hours of darkness into hours of production and in countless other ways plays an important part in the war effort.

Harry C. Klotz, Manhattan, Harold Scheer, Monee, William Schramm, Manhattan, William Bernard, Mokena, Fred E. Yunker, Orland Park, E. J. Gable Farm, Sigvard Anderson, tenant, Dwight E. B. Reeves and Son, Morris, Harold Spandert, Morris Preliminary judging is scheduled for July 13 to 16, inclusive.

Ceiling Prices Effect

Good Beef Cattle

(Reported by John Clay & Co.)

Record receipts on tap and, in prospect have not adversely influenced prices prevailing in the hog trade. Sales are being made on the highest basis in 16 years and only a fraction under best levels since 1920. Trade in better grade steers continues dull, being affected by new beef ceilings to be enforced beginning July 13.

A spring pig crop of 62 million head, or 25 per cent more than a year earlier, is reported and a fall crop of over 43 million is indicated. The combined total will be the first to exceed 100 million in history. Trade interests are recommending the shipment of strong weight porkers to avoid a pileup later.

Beef ceiling regulations are having the anticipated influence on the finish of steers—reduced tonnage and lack of condition. The latest ruling places wholesale beef prices no higher than the lowest figure at which at least 30 per cent of the wholesalers total quantity of each grade realized from March 16 to 28. Lamb prices are being supported on the highest basis since 1929.

About Charge

Accounts

Charge accounts for May or previous months must be paid before July 10, the Federal Reserve System warned today.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago pointed out the order applies only to certain "listed" classes of goods, but in order to stay within the regulations the stores probably will make the rule general. The consumer cannot obtain any more merchandise until his account is cleared.

A leading merchant said there is no need of a penalty on a store for noncompliance. "All retail establishments are under federal license" he said, and if the authorities ever decide we are not cooperating, we might lose our license. That is too much of a risk.

In theory, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago will be stern in its enforcement, but actually, policing will be left almost entirely to the retailers.

A customer who cannot pay his bill can make arrangements, but if he does not do so, his account will be declared in default and the merchant must refuse him further credit.

Men are dying for the Four Freedoms. The least we can do here at home is to buy War Bonds—10% for War Bonds, every pay day.

Rock Sulphate Is Now Available

Orders for rock phosphate are now being taken by your county AAT office. This material is available to Cooperators through the Conservation Materials program. The cost of the phosphate is $12.80 per ton, in paper bags, delivered to shipping points over the entire county.

All farmers cooperating with the AAA who have not already earned their entire Soil Building Allowance are urged to make arrangements for the delivery of lime or phosphate immediately. It is very important that everyone earn their entire Soil Building Allowance as we need to carry out our Soil Building practices now more than ever before.

OFFICIAL U. S. TREASURY WAR BOND QUOTAS FOR JULY

ILLINOIS

U. S. Treasury Official
War Bond Quotas
for July

July Quota for State,
$84,925,000

The May Quota for Illinois Was $49,300,000
The May Sales for Illinois Were $52,227,000

The above map of Illinois shows the War Bond quotas, by counties, for the month of July, 1942. Total War Bond quota for the state is $84,925,000. With the National quota total placed at a billion dollars, the nation goes into high gear in its support of the War financing and to give our fighting forces adequate implements of war which will bring ultimate Victory. American Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen are on every front. They are giving 100 percent for their country. What are we doing here on the home front? Are we lending at least ten percent of income to help them? It's very little. But to fight this war successfully our country needs a billion dollars in War Bonds every month from us—the People. Let's Go, America.

These Babecued Hamburgers Are Appetite-Tempting!
(See Recipes Below.)

Outdoor Fun

The delicious aroma of meat cooking over a crackling fire, toasted buns, and freshly roasted corn or potatoes in the embers—all these make for plenty of summer fun. Toss together your outdoor cooking equipment, bright, gay colored cloths, napkins, and gather some wood for your picnic. Plan to have lots of hearty, nourishing food to give your picknickers so they will have plenty of that up-and-at-them spirit.

Crunchy green salads packed in jelly glasses or paper containers, steaming hot coffee, baked beans, or macaroni and cheese, and barbecued meat. Dispel the chilliness of cool nights with your picnic outdoors.

Hamburgers are old favorites, but you can make them extra delicious by drizzling a tasty barbecue sauce over them while they cook.

*Barbecued Hamburgers.

(Serves 8)
2 pounds ground beef
1½ teaspoons salt
Pepper to taste
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon chili powder
2 teaspoons brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 medium-sized onion, chopped
1½ tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
½ cup catsup
1 tablespoon hot water

Have any of the thriffter cuts of beef ground—such as chuck, flank, shank, neck, or heel of round. If meat is quite lean, ask your butcher to grind in some suet. Mix meat thoroughly with salt and pepper. Cook on a greased griddle-grill with thick slices of onion. Mix rest of ingredients well and drizzle over hamburgers as they cook. This sauce is also excellent over frankfurters which have been pricked with a fork.

To make a new kind of "cheeseburger," add ½ cup grated cheese to each pound of hamburger, mixing lightly.

Hamburger Puffs.

(Serves 8)
2 pounds chuck steak, ground
2 cups grated raw potato
4 tablespoons grated onion
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ peeled clove of garlic, minced
4 tablespoons milk
4 tablespoons fat

Combine all ingredients except fat. Form into 16 patties. Cook in fat on a greased grill or skillet over medium heat until brown on both

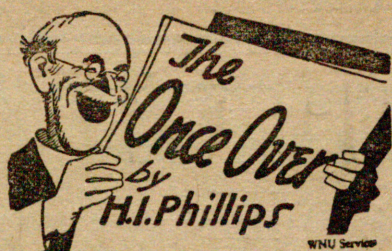

Lynn Says:

For best results in outdoor cooking use a small fire. Be sure you have a deep bed of coals before you start broiling or frying your food.

To start the fire, use a soft quick burning wood like pine, spruce, hemlock, laurel, poplar, or aspen. For a good bed of coals, use a hard wood such as maple, oak, ash, beech, birch, hickory, or any available hard wood in your community.

Seasoned wood which has not lain on the ground long enough to become wet or rotted, but long enough to dry out, is best for fires. Wood without bark makes the best kind of fire, as bark will cause a fire to smoulder. To start a fire more easily, use split wood, as it burns more easily than round logs.

You won't be a sissy if you kneel when using a hand axe for chopping or splitting wood. If you use seasoned wood, it can easily be broken into convenient chunks for the fire.

PRIVATE MANN

("Eugene L. Mann of Wenatchee, Wash., at the age of 65, has enlisted in that state and been assigned to M. P. duty. This is his third war. He is the head of three corporations and spent the last ten days playing golf and arranging for their operation in his absence."—News item.)

I
Chuck my golf bag in the cellar—
Hang my golfing togs away;
Tell my corporation staffs that
I will not be in today.
Put my slippers in the discard—
I'll not need the things for I've Joined up with the U. S. army—
I am only sixty-five!

II
Stick away my trusty driver—
Cover up my irons well;
Tell my locker-room companions
I'll be missing for a spell;
To the boys down at the office
Say I'm leaving 'em quite cold—
Once again I am a doughboy—
Who says sixty-five is old?

III
In the drawer put my golf balls—
I'll not need 'em any more;
There will be no hooks or slices
In my present type of war;
Let my varied business interests
Run along as best they can.
For the third time in my lifetime
I'm becoming Private Mann.

IV
I have five more years to travel
Ere I'm three score years and ten;
But my feet feel only thirty—
They're the dogs of younger men;
Age is only what you make it—
On the links I'm pretty fit—
Half the effort spent in golfing
Will suffice to do my bit.

V
I joined up to fight the Spaniards
Back in eighteen ninety-eight;
I was in the last world fracas,
And I never join up late;
This big war completely dwarfs
'em—
Now the main bout makes its bid;
In those others I was merely
A "preliminary kid!"

L'ENVOI
So it's Johnny blow the bugle!
I'm a real old hand at war;
Tee up all those Axis partners! . . .
Private Mann is calling "Fore!"

PRIVATE PURKEY ON THE USO DRIVE
Prescott S. Bush, National Chairman, USO Drive.

Dear Mr. Bush—Like every other service man I want to do my bit to boost the USO which is now making a big drive for more dough to make life for us more comfortable. If the general public knew what the USO had done for the U.S.A. it would be surprised. I got a idea for the whole story in a nutshell and here it is:

GIVE TO THE U.S.O.

S O S
And the U. S. A.
Will win the war
P. D. Q.
O. K.

We used to sing about keeping the home fires burning. The USO is moving the fires right into the camps and furnishing coal and wood. It has brought all the comforts of home right to the army and navy. Why, Mr. Bush, a jeep now lives better than a general used to and some times I guess when the war is over and I get back home I will be squawking how I miss all the comforts of army life. If you keep on doing so much for us you will have to start a drive after the war to raise dough to see that we have as many comforts at home as we used to have in war.

Good luck to the USO which rates AAA with U and with I for what it does for the U.S.A. Oscar Purkey.

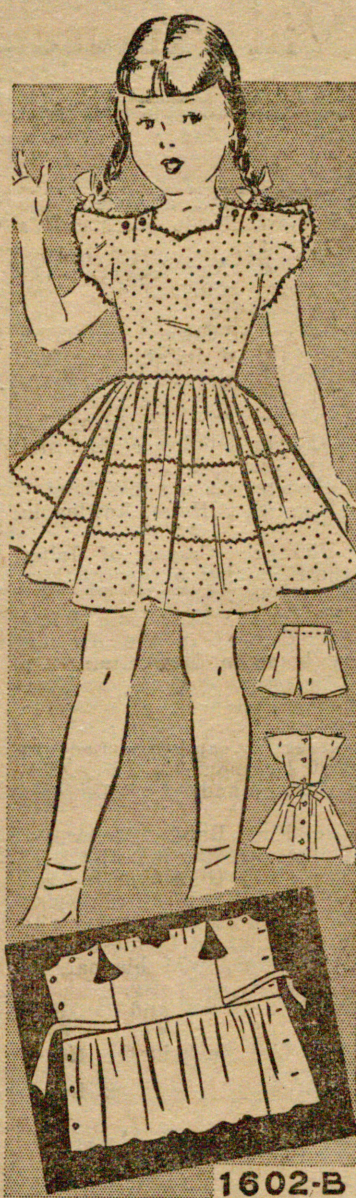

Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chief, delivered such a glowing tribute to the splendid, brave, humane qualities of the late Herr Heydrich that even Heydrich, if he could have heard would have sat up and demanded, "When do you start talking about me?"

"The whole town of Lidice was leveled to the ground and the name of the community extinguished forever."—Nazi statement.

Wanna bet?

The Questions

1. In British slang, what is meant by a limey?
2. The American bird, the chickadee, is also called what?
3. The island of New Guinea is sometimes called what?
4. How many lines has a poem called a triolet?
5. Which is the Panhandle state?
6. What country leads the world in amount of irrigated land?
7. Where is the original Bridge of Sighs?
8. Do heavyweight parachute jumpers use the same size parachutes as the lightweights?
9. In what year did Japan start its undeclared war on China?

The Answers

1. A sailor or soldier.
2. Titmouse.
3. Papua.
4. Eight.
5. West Virginia.
6. India.
7. Venice.
8. Parachutes come in two standard sizes: a 24-foot chute goes to pilots weighing up to 180 pounds; a 28-footer to any flier over that.

"No, my husband has hardly any of the minor vices."
"Doesn't he even smoke?"
"Well, after a good dinner he may smoke a cigar, but that's only about once in six weeks."

Some men know better as they grow older. Others merely know more.

Sound Sleep

First Recruit (the morning after his first 15-mile hike under full pack)—Boy, did I sleep last night. I slept like a log.

Second Recruit—Yeah, man. Like a log with a saw going through it.

One thing a soldier is afraid of is a display of emotion. That's why his slang so often sounds derogatory. For example, he refers to the silver eagles on his colonel's shoulder straps as "buzzards." But when he speaks of his favorite cigarette, he says: "Camels." They're first with men in the Army as well as with Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen. (According to actual sales records in service men's stores.) A gift of a carton of Camels is always well received. Local tobacco dealers are featuring Camel cartons to send to any member of our armed forces. Hint for the day: Send "him" a carton of Camels.—Adv.

Here's a Gentler Way to Treat Constipation!

Do you think you have to take harsh cathartics or purges every time constipation makes you miserable? You don't—if you are one of those people with normal intestines who suffer from constipation due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. There is a pleasant and gentler way. All you do is eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly and drink plenty of water. ALL-BRAN is a crisp, delicious cereal. It works quite differently from many medicinal laxatives. They work by prodding the intestines into action or by drawing moisture into them from other parts of the body. But ALL-BRAN acts principally on the contents of the colon, helping you to have easy and normal elimination. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, see a doctor.

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

PRETTY JUNE WEDDING SOLEMNIZED IN WEST PEOTONE CHURCH

A very pretty wedding took place Saturday evening June 27 at 7 o'clock in West Peotone Methodist church when Miss Hazel Schroeder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Schroeder of Joliet became the bride of Mr. John Albin Johnson of Peotone with the Rev. Mr. Klechaur officiating.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Marjorie Hayhurst, cousin of the bride sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" with Mrs. Beaver accompanying.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was very beautiful in a white lace and chiffon dress with a sweetheart neck. She wore a finger tip veil which was held in place with a tiara of beads, and carried a colonial bouquet of white gladiolas and sweet peas encircled by tulle.

Ruth Schroeder, her sister was very attractive in blue lace and chiffon and carried a colonial bouquet of navy and purple sweet peas.

Gilbert Johnson, brother of the groom was the best man.

A reception was held in the church to the relatives and friends. A delicious luncheon was served. The couple received many gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson left that evening on a honeymoon trip to the Wisconsin Dells, they will reside on their return on a farm in the Peotone vicinity.

WILL COUNTY RED CROSS GROUP TO GRADUATE

The first Will County Red Cross Nurses Aid group will be graduated next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the parlors of the Universalist church. There are 40 in this group who have completed 80 hours of instruction and will assist at the both Joliet hospitals.

The Rev. Mr. McPherson, pastor of the church will give the address of the evening; Mrs. Leonard, head of the Nurses Class in Silver Cross hospital and Sister Priscilla of St. Joseph's hospital will present the caps which is always a lovely ceremony and Mr. Ted Woodruff of the Will County Red Cross will present their pins. Everybody is invited to attend this service.

NEW LENOX FAMILY GETS OFFICIAL CONFIRMATION OF SON'S DEATH

Official confirmation of the death of Corp. Harry E. Anderson, U. S. Marine Corps radio operator, who was last stationed on the Island of Guam, was received by his parents Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Anderson of New Lenox Monday.

First reports were that Corp. Anderson was seriously injured and next that he was captured by the Japs and later the Red Cross reported he had died. The youth who was 23 years old, was hit by a bomb from the Japs on Dec. 7 when Pearl Harbor was bombed and lived for five days, passing away the day before Guam fell to the enemy.

In his letter, Lt. Col. Emmett W. Skinner of the Marine Headquarters of Wash. D. C. wrote:

"I deeply regret the death of your son Corp. Harry E. Anderson, U. S. Marine Corps, which is reported to have occurred Dec. 11, 1941

The report further shows that due to the military situation, it was necessary to temporarily inter his remains in the U. S. Cemetery on the island of Guam."

TINLEY METHODIST CHURCH DINNER JULY 9th

The next regular dinner given by the Ladies of the Tinley Park Methodist church will be Thursday July 9th at the church parlors. The dinner will be of Mock Chicken legs and all that goes with it and guaranteed to be delicious.

The WSCS of the Methodist church met Tuesday afternoon. It was a Missionary program with moving pictures in charge of Mrs. Hardinger.
